BIG DOG AND MAGGIE COMPLETE MEDIA KIT

Every pose, every view, with full descriptions and production rules
for flyers, videos, reels, audio, and AI generated content

The official character pack of Hanceville Entertainment and Shopping
78 poses - Big Dog solo - Maggie solo - Together - Front, back, and side views

Prepared for Charles Adams - November 2026

How to use this kit

This kit is the single source for every approved picture of Big Dog and Maggie. Section 1 introduces the characters and the brand. Section 2 is the complete pose catalog: every pose carries an ID code, a description, and its best uses. Sections 3 through 6 give the production rules for flyers, videos, reels, audio and talking content, and AI generation, plus the quality rules that protect the artwork. Section 7 lists every master file by name.

The pictures printed in this guide are previews for choosing poses. The full quality originals are the PNG files in the companion pack, Big_Dog_and_Maggie_COMPLETE_MASTER.zip. Always build from those originals, never from a page of this guide, a screenshot, or a social media copy. Each catalog ID matches one original file, and Section 7 gives the exact file name for every ID.

The three rules that never change

- Character lock. Big Dog and Maggie are never redrawn as different dogs. Their coats, colors, markings, and friendly look stay exactly as drawn. Maggie's purple bow and her purple collar with the gold heart stay on her at all times.
- Quality lock. Work only from the original PNG masters at 1152 by 2048 pixels. Never upscale, never screenshot, never re-save a copy of a copy. Section 6 gives the full rules.
- Approval lock. Nothing publishes without Charles Adams's approval. Prepare the work, show it to Charles, and publish only what he approves.

Section 1 - The characters and the brand

Big Dog

Big Dog

Big Dog is the bulldog mascot of Hanceville Entertainment and Shopping and the face of the Big Dog Approved seal. He is a friendly brindle and white bulldog with a purple tint in his coat, drawn in a soft 3D cartoon style, standing upright like a mascot. His personality is warm, confident, and welcoming: the hometown host who knows every business on the street and stands behind every listing. When Big Dog appears, he promises that the information is checked, honest, and safe.

Maggie is Big Dog's girlfriend and the second face of the page. She is a brindle and white bulldog with a purple tint, long eyelashes, a big purple bow with gold sparkles on one ear, and a purple collar with a gold heart tag. Her personality is sweet, cheerful, and encouraging: the welcoming heart of the pair. She appears on her own and together with Big Dog, and her bow and collar are part of her design and are never removed.

The Big Dog Approved seal

The seal marks a listing or a business as verified: the name, address, and phone are right, the website and Facebook links are tested and lead to the real business, and the details come from the business itself or a trusted official source. Honest blanks beat confident mistakes. Pose 12 in every set, the checkmark sign, is the pose form of this seal.

Brand colors

Color	Hex	Use
Purple	#6D28D9	Primary brand color: headlines, banners, accents
Light purple	#A78BFA	Dark backgrounds, highlights, secondary accents
Gold	#C9A227	Sparingly: the seal, Maggie's heart tag, celebration accents
Black	#000000	Header bars, footers, strong contrast blocks
White	#FFFFFF	Backgrounds and clean space around the characters

Type guidance: bold, friendly headline type with clean, readable body text. Keep strong contrast. The page serves many older readers, so never set small or light text over busy areas.

Section 2 - The complete pose catalog

Every approved pose is listed below with its ID code. Use the ID when requesting work, for example: "Build a reel from BD-F01, DUO-B03, and MG-F12." The ID always refers to the same picture in every pack.

Big Dog, front poses

Big Dog faces the viewer. These are the everyday poses for announcements, promotions, and approvals.

Big Dog, back and side poses

Big Dog from behind and in profile. The back views carry no face, so they suit endings and watching scenes; the side profiles suit walking, running, and pointing across the frame.

BD-B01 - Back view, waving
Seen from behind, standing with one paw raised high, waving.
Best for: Goodbyes, closing frames, see you soon messages

BD-B02 - Back view, sitting
Seen from behind, sitting down, tail visible.
Best for: Closing scenes, watching scenes with the scene placed ahead

BD-B03 - Back view, walking away
Seen from behind, walking away in mid stride.
Best for: Endings, leaving scenes, the start of a journey

BD-B04 - Back view, paws up
Seen from behind with both front paws up, excited, tail wagging.
Best for: Celebration from behind, crowd and concert scenes, festival energy

BD-B05 - Side profile, standing
Full side profile facing right, standing tall.
Best for: Walk on entrances, profile scenes, passing a storefront

BD-B06 - Side profile, sitting
Full side profile facing right, sitting down.
Best for: Waiting scenes, watching something off screen to the right

BD-B07 - Side profile, running
Full side profile facing right, running in mid stride.
Best for: Running across the screen, races, chasing a deadline or a deal

BD-B08 - Side profile, pointing forward
Full side profile facing right, pointing forward with one front paw.
Best for: Directing attention to the right edge, the next scene, or a product at the right

Maggie, back and side poses

Maggie from behind and in profile. Her bow reads clearly from behind, and her heart tag shows in profile.

MG-B01 - Back view, waving
Seen from behind, standing with one paw raised high, waving.

Section 3 - Flyers and still graphics

- Build from the original PNG. Place the master file into the layout at its native resolution. The character art is 1152 by 2048; on a flyer it can print cleanly up to about 4 inches wide at 300 dpi, or fill a phone screen full height.
- Use the white. Every pose sits on a plain white background for clean cut out. On white flyers the art drops in as it is; on colored designs, cut the character out along the silhouette and keep a thin, clean edge with no white halo.
- Give the character room. Never crop a pose through the body, the bow, or a held prop. Keep clear space around the silhouette at least the width of a paw.
- Words beside, not on top. Put headlines and details in the open space of the layout. Pose 7 (pointing) and pose 18 (blank sign) are built to work with words: the pointing paw aims at the text block, and the blank sign carries one short message in bold, readable type.
- Brand frame. Use the brand colors from Section 1: black bars, purple headlines, white space, and gold only as an accent. Add the Big Dog Approved seal when the flyer announces a verified business.
- Export. For print, export PDF or PNG at 300 dpi with the character layer unflattened in the working file. For posting, export PNG. Never export the only copy as a JPEG.

Section 4 - Videos and reels

- Format. Vertical 9:16, 1080 by 1920, is the house format for reels and short videos. The pose art is already 9:16, so the character fills the frame with no stretching and no bars.
- Animate the original. Feed the animation tool the original PNG from the master pack, not a preview from this guide and not a frame from an earlier video. One pose per shot is the standard pattern; let the tool move the character inside that shot.
- Shot patterns that work. Entrance: a side profile (pose B05 or B07) walks or runs in, then cut to a front pose for the message. Announcement: pose 16 (megaphone) with poses 17 (welcoming) or 6 (thumbs up) to close. Goodbye: a back view (pose B01 waving or B03 walking away) as the last shot. Approval story: pose 12 (checkmark sign) held while the business name appears.
- Keep him whole. The full body stays in frame unless the shot is an intentional close up of the face. Paws, bow, and props are never cut off by the frame edge while the character is speaking or gesturing.
- Text on video. Captions in bold white or purple with a black outline, low on the screen, clear of the character's face and paws. Keep each caption to a short line or two.
- Export. Export at 1080 by 1920 with the highest quality setting the tool offers, and keep the exported master file. If a platform offers an upload quality choice, always choose the highest.

Section 5 - Audio, voice, and talking content

- Big Dog's voice. A warm, friendly adult male voice with a natural Southern warmth: confident, plainspoken, and welcoming, like a hometown host. He speaks in complete sentences, at an easy pace, and never shouts except a cheer in celebration scenes.
- Maggie's voice. A warm, friendly adult female voice with the same Southern warmth: sweet, cheerful, and encouraging. She is the heart of the pair and often delivers the welcome and the goodbye.

- Writing for the voice. Short sentences. One idea per line. Read every script aloud before recording: if a line is hard to say, it is hard to hear. Keep most talking pieces between 15 and 60 seconds.
- Lip sync and talking shots. Use a front pose with the mouth visible (poses 1, 2, 6, 16, and 17 are strong talkers). Keep the head steady in frame, keep the microphone clean and close, and never cover the mouth with text, logos, or props while the character speaks.
- Music and sound. Keep music under the voice, never over it. Family friendly tracks only, at a level where every word stays clear. A short, consistent opening sound builds recognition across episodes.
- Audio quality. Record or generate the cleanest source available, export voice at the tool's highest quality, and keep the original audio file with the project. Never lift audio from a compressed social post for reuse.

Section 6 - AI generation rules and quality protection

Rules for any AI tool that creates new content with the characters

- Always start from a catalog pose as the reference image, and name its ID in the request.
- The characters are locked: same dogs, same coats, same colors, same markings, same style. Maggie's bow and collar are never removed, recolored, or restyled.
- New scenes may add backgrounds, props named by Charles, and motion. They may not add other characters, words baked into the artwork, or logos that were not provided.
- Family friendly, always. No scary, mean, political, or adult content, and no content that puts a real business in a false light.
- If a generated result changes a character's face, coat, or proportions, discard it and regenerate from the reference. Close enough is not approved.

Quality protection: how the artwork never loses quality

1. The masters are PNG files at 1152 by 2048 pixels. That resolution is the source of truth for every still and every video frame. All work starts from these files.
2. Never use a screenshot, a preview from this guide, a social media download, or a frame grab as a source. Each of those is a reduced copy, and building from reduced copies is how quality is lost.
3. Never upscale. Enlarging a file invents pixels and softens the art. If a layout needs the character smaller, scale down freely; scaling down is safe. If a design truly needs a larger character, ask Charles rather than stretching the art.
4. Keep the chain lossless. Work in PNG from start to finish for stills. For video, animate the PNG directly and export once, at 1080 by 1920 and the highest quality setting. Every re-export of an export costs quality, so always return to the master and export fresh.
5. Moving or still, the rule is the same: one generation from the master is fine; generations stacked on generations are not. When in doubt, start over from the master file.
6. Store the masters safely. Keep the master pack unchanged as the archive. Do working edits on copies, in a project folder, so the archive can always be reissued clean.
7. File names are fixed. The names in Section 7 identify each pose in every conversation, order, and project. Do not rename the masters.

Section 7 - Master file inventory
